

Voices will be stifled if corporate ownership is expanded. This is certainly true with large newspaper organizations where stories are used in different newspapers across a region, creating homogeneous news outlets. Local news decreases and people are then less aware of local news, and the quality of news tends to decrease as well. Gannett is a good example of this trend. This is the case with newspapers and will and has expanded to other media outlets. Please stop the stifling of news voices.